

EX-NAVAL OFFICER GOES TO SING SING, OWNED TO 3 WIVES

Third Woman Faints on Witness Stand—Judge Scores McNulty, the Accused.

Pleading guilty to an indictment for bigamy, which charged that he had three wives, John F. McNulty, former first grade lieutenant in the United States Navy and more recently captain of the steamship Felton of the United States Merchant Marine, received the maximum sentence for his crime from Judge Wadhams in General Sessions to-day.

In passing sentence the Judge said he regretted that he could not give the prisoner a heavier sentence, but that as a first offender the law prescribed a maximum penalty of not less than two years and six months nor more than five years in Sing Sing Prison. McNulty gave his address as No. 405 Baltimore Street, Baltimore.

An additional indictment charging perjury by swearing falsely when he took out his last marriage license, was dismissed.

McNulty's third wife, who was Miss Martha Finkler of No. 749 22d Street, Brooklyn daughter of Frank Finkler, a lawyer at No. 2 Rector Street, was the first witness against him to-day. But she had scarcely started to give her testimony when, overcome by sight of the prisoner, the father of her child, she toppled from the witness chair in a faint which lasted nearly an hour. When later revived she was unable to resume the chair and was driven home in a condition of collapse.

Mr. Finkler told the Court that his daughter had been a student at Barnard College when America entered the war. She joined the Women's Motor Corps and was sent to the Brooklyn Navy Yard. There she was assigned to drive a car used by Lieut.

McNulty. Despite her father's objections, she married McNulty at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine on April 2, 1919. Later it was found that McNulty had previously married Mary Wasal Oct. 25, 1908, and Ruth Ennis, by whom he had three children, on Nov. 8, 1911.

Mr. Finkler told of an alleged attempt to kill himself and his daughter. McNulty, he said, was seen by his wife to drop mercury tablets in the coffee pot which was boiling. She threw its contents into the sink.

Believing that $5,000 worth of Liberty Bonds had been destroyed in a fire discovered in his library half an hour after McNulty had seen him place the bonds there, Mr. Finkler told the Court, he applied to Washington for their redemption and was informed that some of the bonds had been sold in a number of cities. McNulty admitted to him after his arrest, he stated, that he had stolen the bonds.

"Is it true that you stole the bonds?" asked Judge Wadhams. McNulty denied having made such an admission and questioned the Court's right to interrogate him upon anything outside of the bigamy charge.

"It has cost me $24,000, including the Liberty Bonds, declared Mr. Finkler, "to rid my daughter of this man."

...Jewelry... at half price

(10-karat gold)

Is there a woman who has too many dainty brooches—or bar pins—or lavallieres? . . . Or a man who can truthfully say: "I don't want a new scarf pin?" . . . Of course not! . . . And that is why we were so eager to get these dainty pieces underprice.

Take, for instance, the brooches. Examine them closely. Notice the filigree work—how well it is done—how accurate—how gracefully designed. Note, also, that the stone settings are GOOD settings, and that the pins are strongly made. Poor jewelry is not made this way.

The variety is so large that it actually offers 49 styles of lavallieres, 17 styles of bar pins, 82 styles of brooches and 27 styles of men's scarf pins.

The Lavallieres—half price at $6

The Bar Pins—half price at $4.75

The Brooches—half price at $3.75

The Scarf Pins—half price at $1.75

Main Floor, Old Building.
